

a Covenant of Blood

KENNETH COPELAND

---

a Covenant of Blood

KENNETH COPELAND

KCP Publications
Fort Worth, Texas

A Covenant of Blood

ISBN 0-88114-797-4

#30-0039

Reprinted January 1991

©1987 Kenneth Copeland Ministries, Inc.

All Rights Reserved. Reproduction in Whole or Part Without Written Permission is Prohibited. Printed in United States of America.

Unless otherwise indicated, all Scripture quotations are from the KING JAMES VERSION.

Published by KCP Publications Fort Worth, Texas
76192

A Covenant of Blood

Israel was a nation that lived by and relied on their covenant with God. Those who knew their God and the integrity of their covenant with Him were mighty and did exploits in His name.

David was a prime example. He credited his covenant with God as the power behind his ability to slay the lion, the bear, and the giant. In 1 Samuel 17:34-37, we find David assuring King Saul that he was well able to slay Goliath. Who is this uncircumcised Philistine, that he should defy the armies of the living God? he said. The Lord that delivered me out of the paw of the lion, and out of the paw of the bear, he will deliver me out of the hand of this Philistine (vss. 26,37).

Circumcision was the sign of the covenant. By calling Goliath uncircumcised, David was making this very pointed statement: He may be a giant; he may be strong; but he has no covenant with God, and that's why I can kill him. Of course, you know the rest of the story. David bravely slew Goliath in the name of the Lord—because of his covenant.

The Book of Hebrews promises that we have an even better covenant than David had. Our covenant has better promises. But to know exactly how much better they are, we must understand what the promises of the Old Covenant were.

The covenant David stood on was made long before he ever faced the giant. God established it with a man called Abram. He promised to make Abram the father of many nations. He promised to give him a great deal of land as an inheritance so that his descendants could live peacefully on it. And in the twenty-eighth chapter of Deuteronomy, you will find more very specific promises that God made to Abram's descendants—promises of health, well-being, blessing, and victory.

These were very awesome promises. It was hard for Abram to believe that God actually wanted to do these things for him. In the fifteenth chapter of Genesis, we read how God made a blood agreement with Abram in order to convince Abram once and for all that He meant what He said. Abram asked, "How shall I know that I will inherit this land?" The Lord answered by telling him to prepare for a blood covenant. He said,

Take me an heifer of three years old, and a she goat of three years old, and a ram of three years old, and a turtledove, and a young pigeon. And he took unto him all these, and divided them in the midst, and laid each piece one against another: but the birds divided he not

(Gen. 15:9,10).

In Abram's day the blood covenant signified an absolute and unbreakable guarantee of a man's word. Nothing short of a blood agreement could have convinced Abram of God's desire to bless him. By cutting the covenant with him, Almighty God communicated His unfailing love and fidelity on a level Abram could understand. God was establishing a love relationship with him that could not be broken without the penalty of death.

In order to see just how that covenant compares to the one we have with the Father today, we need to see what the covenant God cut with Abraham involved. That way we can begin to see clearly why ours is even better.

In Abram's society, when two families made covenant together, they gave to one another everything they had and all they represented. They were no longer two, but one. Families bound themselves together in blood agreements in order to fill in the gaps created by each other's weaknesses and needs. Where the first tribe was strong, the second was weak. Where the second tribe was weak, the first was strong. Together, they were both strong.

These two families drew up the terms of their agreement and discussed them until each article was fully and mutually agreeable. Then they chose representatives and a place to cut the covenant.

As they prepared for the solemn ceremony, at least three large animals were sacrificed. Their carcasses were split down the spine, and the halves were placed on the ground opposite each other. The result was a trail of blood between the halves. This path was called "the way of blood."

When the covenant ceremony began, the two representatives exchanged their coats.

This signified the mutual exchange of authority. By this act the covenant representatives were saying, "All that I do, all that I have is now yours."

Next the covenant representatives exchanged their weapons. Through this they were saying, "My strength is now your strength. Your enemies are now my enemies."

After the coats and weapons were exchanged, then came the walk of blood. Twice the representatives walked through "the way of blood." Then they would stop in the center. There they pronounced their pledges of loyalty, making promises to each other that could never be broken. This pronouncement was called "the blessing of the covenant."

A curse was also pronounced. The curse was the penalty for breaking the terms of the agreement. They swore by their god, thereby making him third party to the covenant.

Next came the cut of the covenant. The representatives cut their hands and wrists and bound their wrists together so that their blood would intermingle.

After their loyalty was sworn to each other, the families joined their names together as a permanent sign that they had become one. Finally, they ate a covenant meal of bread and wine together. The bread signified their flesh, and the wine signified their blood. The covenant meal represented their willingness and commitment to lay down their lives for each other.

Such blood agreements were very serious and solemn in Abram's day. That is why God chose to make a covenant with him. He wanted to convince Abram that His promises were true. He wanted him to understand that the great El Shaddai desired an unbreakable relationship with him and with his children after him. God wanted Abram to know (without a doubt) that He loved him and that He would care for him, not because He had to, but because He wanted to. By making blood covenant with him, Almighty God proved that He wanted to exchange His strength, His weapons, and His authority with Abram. He proved that He wanted to bless man for a thousand generations.

Romans 4:21 tells us that Abram got the message. He became fully persuaded that God was able to perform that which He had promised, and his life was never the same again. Even his very name was changed to Abraham, meaning "father of many nations." And eventually Isaac, the long awaited son of promise, was born to Abraham and his wife, Sarah.

Years after Isaac's birth, that covenant was still strong in Abram's mind. And nothing—not even a request from God Himself—could shake his confidence. We see this in Genesis 22. There God asks Abraham to place his only son on the altar and sacrifice him. How could He do this after promising Abraham that he would become the father of many nations through this son?

We would expect Abraham to be distraught over such a request. We would expect him to wring his hands and pace the floor all night in grief and anguish. But we're not as covenant-minded as Abraham was.

Abraham was confident in his covenant. He went to sleep that night and rose up early the next morning ready to go. And when he took Isaac up on the mountain of sacrifice, he turned to his servant and said, "Wait here—the boy and I will be back." He had a covenant!

Hebrews 11:17-19 says that Abraham, by faith, had already received Isaac raised from the dead. God had promised him Isaac would make him the father of many nations, and he knew God could not possibly break that promise. Even though he'd never seen or heard of such a thing, Abraham reasoned that God would just raise Isaac back up from the dead if he had to. He knew that God would do whatever it took to keep their covenant.

And when Abraham laid his son down on the altar of sacrifice, he opened the way for God—his covenant partner—to do the same thing with His only Son, Jesus, on the cross years later. But here's an important point for you to realize. Jesus didn't just appear on the scene at that time. He'd been involved in that covenant from the beginning. According to Galatians 3:16, while God was binding Himself in covenant to Abraham on earth, He was also making covenant with Jesus in heaven. Now to Abraham and his seed were the promises made. He saith not, And to seeds, as of many; but as of one, And to thy seed, which is Christ. Abraham was the earthly representative. Jesus was the heavenly representative. The covenant was not only between God and Abraham, but between God the Father and God the Son. By making covenant with Jesus, He was making covenant with someone He knew would never break it and thereby removing the need for a curse.

How does all this apply to you and me? Galatians 3:29 is the binding tie. And if ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise. We are the unborn generations which looked on as God cut the covenant with Abram as the father of our covenant faith. Romans 8:17 calls us joint-heirs with Jesus Christ. Through the New Covenant, God has promised to care for us the same way He would love and care for Jesus.

This New Covenant is better than the old. If you'll read Deuteronomy the twenty-eighth chapter, you'll find the blessings that are promised to those who keep the terms of the agreement. They're wonderful promises—it's hard to imagine any better. But keep reading and you'll also find the curse that will fall on those who break the agreement. That's where our covenant differs. Although we ourselves have been guilty of breaking the terms of the covenant, we've been freed from the penalty of it.

From the time Jesus was born until He died at Calvary, He never broke the terms of the covenant. Yet when He went to the cross, He bore the curse, or penalty, for breaking it. Why? So that you and I would never have to bear it.

Christ hath redeemed us from the curse of the law, being made a curse for us: for it is written, Cursed is every one that hangeth on a tree: That the blessing of Abraham might come on the Gentiles through Jesus Christ; that we might receive the promise of the Spirit through faith (Gal. 3:13,14).

Every demonic and diabolical thing that could ever come against you during this lifetime was placed on Jesus when He went to the cross. He bore the penalty for your sin. He bore all of your sicknesses and carried all of your diseases.

He totally stripped the devil of his power to harm you. He bore the curse for you so that you could receive the blessing of Abraham through faith in Jesus Christ.

Jesus became the sacrificial Lamb that established your covenant with God. His own blood was shed. The Book of Hebrews says that we have a new and living way to approach God. Remember "the way of blood"? Well, the blood of Jesus has made the way for us to have a covenant relationship with the Father.

Jesus was not only the blood sacrifice, but He also became our Representative—the one Mediator between God and man! We have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous (1 John 2:1). He not only sees to our forgiveness when we confess our sins, He cleanses us from all unrighteousness.

Jesus was not only the blood sacrifice and the Representative, He was also the covenant meal.

I am the living bread which came down from heaven: if any man eat of this bread, he shall live for ever: and the bread that I will give is my flesh, which I will give for the life of the world (John 6:51).

When you understand covenant terminology, then you can see the thread of a covenant relationship woven all through the New Testament. Read Ephesians 6:10,11 and 13-17 in this new light.

Finally, my brethren, be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might. Put on the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil. Wherefore take unto you the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to withstand in the evil day, and having done all, to stand. Stand therefore, having your loins girt about with truth, and having on the breastplate of righteousness; And your feet shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace; Above all, taking the shield of faith, wherewith ye shall be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked. And take the helmet of salvation, and the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God.

Jesus has exchanged His weapons and armor with you and made you strong in the power of His might. He exchanged your weakness for His strength. Through a covenant relationship, you are now one with Him.

Jesus took your sin and gave you His robe of righteousness and right-standing with God. He has become so totally one with you that He has given you the authority to use His name. And these signs shall follow them that believe; In my name shall they cast out devils (Mark 16:17). The devil has no right to be interfering in your affairs.

The New Covenant does not depend on your ability to keep it. It depends on Jesus' ability to keep it. Just like Abraham...just like David... you have a covenant with Almighty God. Just like Abraham, you can become fully persuaded that what God has promised you, He is able also to perform. Just like David, you can stand on that covenant and whip any uncircumcised circumstance that stands in your way—no matter how big it looks.

But your covenant is better. It doesn't carry a curse anymore. Right now read Deuteronomy the twenty-eighth chapter, verses 16-68, in your Bible. That's a list of the curses Christ has freed you from. They include every diabolical thing the devil could ever use to destroy you. Read them and rejoice! Those are the things God has healed you of and delivered you from. Receive your deliverance. Jesus paid an incredible price for it. He bore the curse. He became the covenant sacrifice for you, proving once and for all just how intensely He desires to love and to bless you. Let Him do it now. You'll love Him all the more in return!

Books by Kenneth Copeland

- * The Force of Faith
- * The Force of Righteousness
- The Troublemaker
- Our Covenant with God
- * The Decision is Yours
- * Welcome to the Family
- * A Ceremony of Marriage
- * You are Healed
- * The Power of the Tongue
- * Now are We in Christ Jesus
- * Freedom from Fear
- * Prayer—Your Foundation for Success
- * Sensitivity of Heart
- * The Mercy of God
- Giving and Receiving
- Prosperity: The Choice is Yours
- Six Steps to Excellence in Ministry
- The Miraculous Realm of God's Love
- The Laws of Prosperity
- From Faith to Faith—A Daily Guide to Victory

Books by Gloria Copeland

- * God's Will for You
- God's Will for Your Healing
- * God's Will is Prosperity
- * And Jesus Healed Them All
- * Walk in the Spirit
- From Faith to Faith—A Daily Guide to Victory

* Available in Spanish

For more information about this ministry and a free catalog, please write:

Kenneth Copeland Ministries
Fort Worth, Texas 76192

World Offices of Kenneth Copeland Ministries

CANADA
P.O. Box 58248
Vancouver, BC V6P 6K1

ENGLAND
P.O. Box 15
Bath, BA1 1GD

AUSTRALIA
Locked Bag 8
Australia Square
Sydney, N.S.W. 2000

SOUTH AFRICA
P.O. Box 830
Randburg 2125

A Covenant of Blood

Look out! The giant is back. And he's threatening the children of God with poverty, sickness, failure, and death. But don't let him scare you. You've got a secret weapon. It once turned a shepherd boy into a bear-busting, lion-killing, giant-slaying champion. It's called...A Covenant of Blood.

KCP Publications
Fort Worth, Texas

ISBN 0-88114-797-4

#30-0039